Another interesting thing about the painting is the mirror in the back of the picture. The mirror shows the reflection of the king and queen of Spain, Infantata Margaret Theresa's parents. However, they do not appear in the picture at all. Instead, it seems like the viewers of the painting are considered to be the royal couple. Also, the subjects of the painting are looking in the direction of the viewer… or are they looking at the king and queen? This mystery makes the painting very interesting to art critics.

In fact, Saturn's density is so low that the whole planet is actually less dense than water! If there was a large enough ocean of water, Saturn could probably float in it. Why is Saturn so light? During the winter, rivers, lakes and streams all freeze. Birds that live near water fly south for the winter. Other animals hibernate. However, ocean water does not freeze and stays liquid. 다음 글의 그리스 로마 시대의 신화에 대한 내용으로 일치하는 것은?

Greek and Roman mythology have long influenced the work of European artists. Classical writers of Europe and North America made allusions to mythological characters and ideas in their poetry and fiction. Also, modern artists still feature mythological characters in movies. Films featuring Greco-Roman mythology include recent movies such as 300, Troy, and even Disney's animated film Hercules. These movies feature familiar characters such as Hercules, Zeus, Helen of Troy, Odysseus, and the like. Sometimes, they have the same adventures as their ancient authors first told. However, other stories are re-imagined into more modern tales. For example, the Audrey Hepburn musical My Fair Lady was based on the Ancient Greek story of Pygmalion, who fell in love with a statue he sculpted.

Originally, sailors used pre-measured rope to measure the depth of the ocean and predict the shape of the land underneath. However, this was inaccurate because it was slow and could only measure one small point at a time. Secondly, the rope could easily be pulled by currents or wind and thus not measure the true spot.

Nowadays, different technologies are used. The echo sounder sends out a wave of sound and measures the amount of time it takes for the sound to bounce back. The longer it takes, the deeper the ocean floor is. Nowadays, echo sounders can accurately send out many, many beams of sound at one time.
